

Create a Design Mobile World Station

Introduction

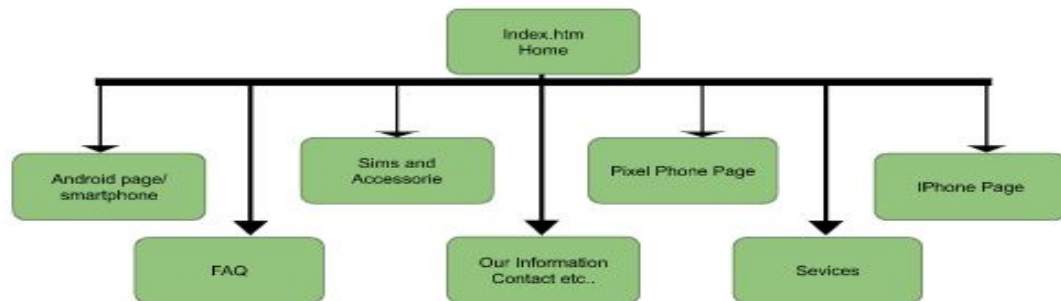

I have been creating an interactive website for www.mobileworldstation.co.uk to attract persons who are interested in buying a mobile phone, phone accessories or sim contract. The site aims to promote mobile services, mobile products and accessories such as; the new Samsung galaxy S24 Ultra 5G with dual sim, sim free, 5g Network compatibility, wide range of compatible earphones and sim options such as; sim contracts services, sim free, nano sim and hybrid sim options. This website consists of eight website pages that will be all accessible from the home page.

The home page will be accessible by clicking the site banner (hotspot/ hyperlink within image text) on any of the seven webpages. The site's theme and template will be a calm background with bold colourful written text, an Action button, images and hotspots to make the site easier to use and navigate. The reason for this is to make the text and interactive features bold enough for any user to see and to help them use the site efficiently. The simplicity helps to focus on better functional aspects of the website which is important. The website form is located on the services page and is completed using an action button to submit the form and take action.

There will be a link to a leader article that is relevant to the content of the page, which can be accessed by users, to help with their decisions in regard to buying the right phone for them. The reason I used these articles is so the user can have access to information while using this site, negating the need to leave and go elsewhere for the information, and so the user is more likely to make well informed decisions about buying a phone from this site. A video is located on the main home page to also give the user access to information about phones this year.

There are three phone shop pages with details of mobiles; Iphone, Pixel, Android which display phones for sale. The fourth sales page is mobile accessories sims, where users can browse the information given on the website for sims and sim contracts as well as purchase items available. A service page is attached for additional information that the user may take as an option, and to ensure their items are safe and covered. Website FAQ page is available with help information added for users who were having issues with the website. The last webpage has contact information with access to google map by using a link and google map image.

Alternative solutions for this page

Adding an action button with bright colour and pill shape instead of using hotspot hyperlink to take the user to the articles website. I decided that the hotspot would be a helpful visual improvement for the user.

Pop up details are distracting to some users so even though it was considered a decision not to go ahead with this was made.

Develop and Test a Website

Mobile World Station

Introduction

I have been developing and testing the website Mobile World Station . I have created a website map, plan and have the go ahead to develop and test this site plan. The website will have a table to show sim deals, a feedback form and a form that allows users to stay up to date with Mobile World Station. The site contains at least one embedded uploaded video and one link to a video. Links to articles and websites where products and information can be obtained are presented on this site.

The site has interlinked web pages that all lead back to the main home page. The site has a basic but bold look and is easy to navigate. Text is used to help direct users and help with navigation of the site. The site is a mobile website that is designed for users interested in purchasing a mobile phone and, or mobile products such as accessories.

Easy to see and navigate use of bold text, images and consistent colour.
Basic features with basic function with easy usability and smoother operation.
Links make usability more convenient with access to information and making decisions.
The site is much more interesting with a mix of media, articles and links.
Bold color adds to the interest of the user but does not over overwhelm the page.
Consistent themes throughout make the site less confusing and adds to usability.

Introduction

How the website is suitable for the intended audience and purpose.

I will be reviewing the planning and development of the recently developed website for Mobile World Station. The website's intended audience are people who are interested in mobile phones. Browsing on the mobile world stations website is there at the click of a button.

The table provided shows current deals on sim card options and a link is provided to go to the required page. The banner can be clicked returning the user to the home page should they feel the need for an improved user experience.

Customers can navigate the site using the buttons, hyperlinks and banner hyperlink provided making it easier to go to the next page, click on a page or watch the related videos provided on the webpages. Dynamic website provides a basic layout, images and hyperlinked videos and navigational features stand out on a basic white background.

The thought behind the design is one of care, based on the user who finds moving parts and backgrounds distraction. All of the written content is bold, and big, making it easy to read and text is used to help navigate the website easily. The website provides videos to allow the potential customer to find information they may need without leaving the website.

The table provided shows current deals on sim card options and a link is provided to go to the required page. The banner can be clicked returning the user to the home page should they feel the need for an improved user experience.

The mobile information is displayed clearly and the item images are laid out in a uniform manner so the user can compare the phones next to each other to help better make a decision.

Thanks for watching
